HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ENTERTAIN FATHERS

FRIDAY EVENING OF LAST WEEK.

LARGE NUMBER PRESENT

Address of Welcome by Clyde Wardman; Response by T. B. Talbert; Supt. Mitchell Present.

The boys of the Huntington Beach Union High School entertained their fathers and friends Friday evening of last week in a very creditable manner. The dinner was served at tables arranged in the main hallway of the school building, and those in charge are entitled to considerable credit, as a decidedly palatable menu was expeditiously served.

V. B. Brown, principal of the school, acted as toastmaster in an entertaining manner. He said that Mothers' Day had been known for some time, and it had been left to Huntington Beach to originate Fathers' Night, which was for the purpose of getting acquainted. Mr. Brown said the school furnished good material and the faculty desired to make the best of it. The boys, he stated, were good and fair, and the only difference between them and their fathers was in size and experience.

The address of welcome was made by Clyde Wardman, who said the idea of entertaining parents was originated by the Girls' League of the school when they invited their mothers. The boys then decided to do something for their fathers, and Fathers' Night was the result. The first year there were but few parents present, but this year the members of the Chamber of Commerce were invited, and the girls were asked to invite their parents, and he was pleased to see so many of those present that supported the school. He believed that it would be highly beneficial to the boys to meet and get acquainted with the men of the community.

T. B. Talbert, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, responded to the address of welcome, saying that this was the first one of the meetings he had attended. He complimented the boys highly for their enterprise, and thought that such meetings would result in a better school and a better community.

E. E. French, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was the next speaker, and told the boys that they had shown a progressive spirit that was commendable in originating Fathers' Night. Mr. French said he had been asked to talk on building, and building meant almost everything, for scarcely anything could be done that there was not some building about. First, he said, was the mining of the ore or the felling of the timber, then the skilled labor. The schools take the raw products and turn over to society the finished product. School life should be taken seriously.

Royal Jumper of Newport Beach followed, and it was his opinion that the boys did not know what they were here for until they reached High school. He said the activities of the Student Body corresponded with the activities of the community in which the school was located. Some times the election of officers of the Student Body was of as great interest to students as was the election of president of the United States.

Teddy Tarbox was called upon and said he had come from the kitchen and therefore could not be expected to say very much. His subject was Thrift. He said that thrift and economy had to be practiced, as many boys had to work their way through school. In these times he thought it was the duty of everyone to be thrifty and save as much as possible.

F. H. McElfresh, secretary of the High School Board, talked about community spirit, saying some had wondered just what the meeting had been called for, thinking that it might be for the purpose of some of the candidates making political announcements. The social relation of the school to the community was a question that should be of interest to everybody. The war, he said, was making great changes and was drawing communities closer together. The rich and poor were together in the ranks of the army, and in the future there would be a closer relation between these men than ever before. Mr. McElfresh said there were many activities of the community in which the teachers could be of great assistance if they were inclined to take enough interest to ascertain the aims of the community. He said they could be of service in the lodges, churches, Chamber of Commerce, etc. The people of the community support the schools, and the teachers should be interested in them, as the amount of salary paid depended largely upon the prosperity of the community.

Cecil McCoy was introduced as the boy who sold more Liberty Bonds than anyone else. He said the engine was going and must be kept going. The Student Body, he said, drained its treasury to purchase a Liberty Bond, and the students were proud of it. He stated that a Junior Red Cross had just been organized.

R. P. Mitchell of Santa Ana, county superintendent of schools, was introduced by Mr. Brown as one of the few men in public office against whom he had heard no complaint. A son of Mr. Mitchell was present and was asked to stand that the audience might become acquainted with him.

Mr. Mitchell said he had been talking to boys for years, telling them to go to school and be good, as they would soon have to take the places of their fathers. He said that in the German schools the students had been taught that might makes right and that the weakling had no right to exist, while in this country the opposite was taught. Mr. Mitchell said the school was gradually becoming closer to the home. He said the school gave the student judgment, no matter what branches were studied.

Jack Given at the piano and Leo Lavering with traps and drum furnished music for the occasion.

After the speaking, those present adjourned to one of the class rooms, where Harold Scoles and Russel Alfred engaged in a boxing contest.

Francis McElfresh and Royal Jumper amused the audience with a barrel fencing bout, which was won by Francis.

Considerable amusement followed the black glove meet between Jack Renfro and Paul Vandruff.

Afterwards, most of those present visited the Manual Arts building, where Mr. Stearns had some of his students working at the machines.

The only other member of the Board present, besides Mr. McElfresh, was P. A. Isenor.

The following were present: Dr. G. A. Shank, Jas. J. Conrad, F. H. McElfresh, Raymond Grey, C. E. Lavering, Wm. G. Preston, M. D. Rosenberger, T. B. Talbert, H. C. Decker, Henry Goetsch, B. T. O'Connor, Judge Louis A. Copeland, O. C. Hare, Sterling Price, Boyden F. Hall, Judge C. W. Warner, J. A. McCoy, Geo. B. Crane, J. B. J. DeLapp, P. A. Isenor, E. E. French, Joseph Vavra, W. E. SUNSET BEACH PIER WRECKED THURSDAY.

ABOUT 400 FEET WASHED AWAY BY WAVES.

About 400 feet of the pier at Sunset Beach was wrecked by the big waves that lashed the shore Thursday morning, and Philip Snyder had a narrow escape from going down with the falling timbers.

The pier was old, but had withstood the high seas when all other similar structures from Santa Monica south were washed away. Some concrete piles had recently been driven to strengthen the structure and these remain standing to mark the place where the pier stood.

When it was believed the pier would give way, Mr. Snyder went out after some tools and had to run to keep from being caught in the wreckage.

SOME FINE CAULIFLOWER.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Robinson have some fine cauliflower at their home, on Eighth street, one being cut a few days ago that measured 31½ inches in circumference.

TRUSTEES' MEETING MONDAY EVENING

CHANGE IN SALARY OF THE CITY TREASURER.

NEXT MEETING MARCH 4TH

There May Be No Comfort Station On Pier; Ordinance Is Passed Licensing Junk Dealers.

There was a very brief session of the city trustees Monday night. At the last meeting City Attorney Nelson was asked to render an opinion as to whether the trustees could regulate the salary of the city treasurer, and in a written opinion Monday evening he advised that under the state law as amended the Board had the authority to fix the compensation of the treasurer.

Trustee Chapin moved that an ordinance be drawn fixing the salary at $25 per month, which was seconded by Trustee Vavra and passed. For the past year, City Clerk Nutt stated, the compensation was about $40 per month, the fee being one per cent on money collected by the city.

City Marshal John Tinsley asked for the construction of a pound, and for electric lights in the city jail. On motion of Trustee Chapin, seconded by Trustee Vavra, City Manager Spencer was directed to have the work done according to the desire of the most efficient city marshal in Orange county.

As there was reported to be some objection to the proposed comfort station on the outer tee of the pier, President Tarbox asked City Attorney Nelson to look up the law covering the matter.

An ordinance licensing junk dealers was given second reading and passed. This ordinance will do away with the army of junk men, or junk thieves as President Tarbox designates them, that have been operating in the city, as the license is fixed at $100 per annum, which they will be unable to pay. The license for the man who maintains an established place of business can operate for $25 per month. Marshal Tinsley has stated that this law will limit the business to one man, whom he can look after.

An ordinance was also passed calling for the city election April 8.

BUSY WEEK FOR CITY MARSHAL TINSLEY.

Last week was one of the busiest weeks for City Marshal John Tinsley since he took the office, four years ago.

One of the cleverest pieces of work accomplished by an Orange county officer for some time was when Marshal Tinsley recovered the fine team taken from the barn on the A. U. Plavan ranch. There was apparently little, if any, progress being made toward the recovery of the team, and Mr. Plavan asked Marshal Tinsley to assist, and he accompanied Mr. Plavan in the latter's car, and the horses were located in one of the horse markets in Los Angeles, Wednesday afternoon. The team, wagon and harness are valued at $1,000 by Mr. Plavan.

The fourteen-year-old boy, who was taken into custody January 29th, while making a bed under the depot platform, where he intended to pass the night, was taken to his home, near Irvine, Saturday. He told a story about his life, which Mr. Tinsley felt was not so, but he was unable to get the boy to change his story until he noticed in the Santa Ana Register that Melvin Friend had left his home, which solved the mystery. The boy's real name is Wood, his mother having married Mr. Friend in Huntington Beach several years ago. While here, the boy worked on the streets and lived with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller, and told Mr. Miller that he would never stay at home again.

Thursday night of last week, the home of Mrs. Grace Brose and her mother was entered and some jewelry and other articles of value taken, which, so far, have not been recovered. Mr. Tinsley believes, however, he has a chance of recovering the stolen property.

BENJAMIN SCOVELL AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

TALKED AT THE ASSEMBLY PERIOD TUESDAY.

Benjamin Scovell, a well-known teacher of dramatics, who formerly conducted a school at the Gamut Club, Los Angeles, spoke at the assembly period at the High school Tuesday morning.

The story recited by Mr. Scovell was a thrilling one and held his auditors spellbound. He told those present, in his powerful, dramatic style, something of the horrors of the dark European conflict, saying that he had covered 59 miles of the front line trenches in his work of entertaining and assisting in caring for the wounded.

Mr. Scovell stated that he had traveled from coast to coast in Canada, and had entertained Liberty boys at many of the cantonments in the United States. He told of his brother and two nephews having paid the supreme price in the British army, and how he had tried to enlist, but was rejected.

When Miss Gladys Conrad decided upon a stage career, Mr. Scovell was her first instructor, in July, 1914; and in November of the same year she was given her first dancing lesson by Mrs. Scovell, who was director of a school at the Gamut Club.

The exercises were opened by a song rendered by the Girls' Glee Club of the school. Jack Given made an announcement for the Junior class play, and Principal V. B. Brown for the Parent-Teacher Association.

At the close of Mr. Scovell's talk, John Murdy moved that the speaker be given a rising vote of thanks, which prevailed, after being seconded by Clyde Wardman.

Cecil McCoy, president of the Student Body, presided and introduced the speaker.

Miss Grace Foley is secretary of the Student Body.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Following Items Appeared in the Huntington Beach News of Feb. 21st, 1908.

The Board of Trade held the best attended meeting Monday night in several months. W. L. McKenney, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, stated that action had been taken toward raising a subscription fund toward the purchase of a silver service set for the cruiser California. He had interviewed the officers of the lodges and others and had met with little encouragement. It developed during the evening that, as most of the people of this city eat off common china by force of habit and circumstances, they were not inclined to donate good money in times like these to buy silverware for the use of high-salaried naval officers. Chairman W. D. Seely of the Advertising Committee reported that photographs were being taken and the matter for the new booklet would be ready for the printer in a short time. It is proposed to have 20,000 or 30,000 pamphlets printed. C. D. Heartwell reported that he had talked with Mr. Tilton, manager of the trolley excursions, and that official agreed that the cars would stop longer in Huntington Beach. Dr. Wilson of the Health and Sanitation Committee reported that the dead cow in the north part of town had been buried several times, notwithstanding the odoriferous evidence to the contrary—at least, the owner had reported that he had buried it. H. Gibbs said that the weeds growing up around the stench would soon make further interment unnecessary. Secretary S. W. Price of the Street Committee reported that the committee had decided to recommend a planting bee, to put in ice plant along Ocean avenue, between the sidewalk and curb, and the time set was for next Thursday, and J. A. Lake was given the job of bossing the work. I. M. Clippinger of the Education and Library Committee recommended that the Board of Trade act with the Woman's Club in arranging a lecture here by Prof. Root, secretary of the Southern California Peace Society, which was concurred in.

The band boys were entertained at the band room Tuesday evening.

The High school boys have decided to quit basketball and take up track sports instead.

A. A. Cole has been appointed a deputy sheriff.

Last Friday evening, five young ladies, Miss Jessie Newland, Miss Rose Peak, Miss Alice Rogers, Miss Vera Pryor and Miss Hallie Walker, gave a Valentine party at the home of Miss Newland to students of the High school. As this is leap year, each girl took a young man, and about 50 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Sundbye entertained members of the Baptist church Wednesday evening of last week. Miss Beatrice McKenney played an organ overture. Mr. Sundbye, in his usual jolly manner, welcomed the visitors. The following interesting talks were given: "The Church—Its Work and Its Relation to the Church," Mrs. G. S. Giles; "The Church and the Masses," M. D. Rosenberger; "The Church and Temperance," Mrs. Lindgren; "The Bible," Mrs. C. R. Nutt. These were interspersed with a vocal duet by Mrs. Sundbye and Mrs. McKenney; reading, by Miss Anne Nutt; mandolin duet, by C. R. Nutt and his daughter, Miss Helen. Mr. and Mrs. Sundbye will move to Long Beach the first of the month.

The celery season is practically over, and the shipments are about one-third less than last year.

A mortgage was filed last week by the Bolsa Chica Land Co. for $52,000 on the gun club property.

J. T. Worthy called at the News office Monday and appeared to be very happy, and it proved to be over the arrival of a daughter.

Earl P. DeLapp and Miss Madge Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Williams, were married in Los Angeles Wednesday. Upon their return, they were given a feast at the Hotel Evangeline. The happy couple will reside in North Pomona.

Henry Brooks is the proud possessor of a burro, a present from his uncle, A. B. Cassells, who shipped it by express from Silver City, N. M.

HIGH MASONIC OFFICIALS WILL BE HEARD.

G. Rhoades Hervey, Grand Master of the Masonic order of California, will be in Anaheim next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, when a dinner will be served. The expense will be proportioned and paid for by the various lodges in the district. Therefore, it will be free to all Master Masons, and there will probably be several attend from Huntington Beach.

Thomas Baker, Grand Lecturer for the state, will be in Santa Ana next Tuesday afternoon and evening.

SAYS BEET CROP CONSIDERED VELVET.

INDUSTRY IS OPPOSED BY CANE SUGAR REFINERS.

The following article, on the sugar beet industry, is from the current issue of "The California Sugar Bowl:"

The recent agitation in regard to prices received by the growers of sugar beets has a much deeper significance than appears on the surface.

First—The foreign sugar cane interests—representing our imports—are bitterly opposed to the domestic sugar beet industry.

Second—Our American farmers do not realize that the sugar beet is the greatest factor in the agricultural development of any section by so increasing the fertility that even if they brought in no revenue it would still pay to grow beets.

Third—That of the seven principal farm crops, namely: corn, wheat, barley, hay, cotton, oats and beets, that sugar beets paid more than any other one per acre, and nearly as much as the two highest—corn and cotton—clearly demonstrating that sugar beets were a paying crop in 1917, even when all the other staples were increased in price nearly 100 per cent, while sugar was normal, and the yield low.

To pay for the cane sugar we imported in 1917 at the present price would require the stupendous sum of $453,407,895.

This is nearly one-half our agricultural exports to European countries for the 10 months in 1917. In other words, it took all the wheat, all the corn, barley, horses and mules to pay for our sugar.

At an average of only 10 tons per acre it would have only required 2,501,000 acres in sugar beets to have produced the same amount, and, on the present contract price, the American farmers would receive $250,000,000, instead of the foreign cane growers.

Is it any wonder that the representatives of these foreign cane interests should do everything in their power to cripple the sugar beet industry, even to the extent of camouflaging the growers by sowing the seeds of discord and discontent, using the growers to destroy their own industry—the sugar beet—which is the richest and most profitable field crop grown in America?

Every ton of beet sugar produced means one ton less of cane sugar imported.

SAYS BEET CROP CONSIDERED VELVET.

As a rotation crop, the sugar beet will add as much to the fertility of the soil for succeeding crops as the value of the sugar produced. This is a broad statement, but it is amply demonstrated in the older sugar beet growing countries of Europe. Leaving out the acreage for horses and mules and rotating with beets every fifth year on the remaining 14,000,000 acres, using 2,500,000 acres for beets, we would have the following increased yields:

	Acres	Bu. Inc.	Value
Wheat	9,250,000	15	$277,500,000
Corn	1,500,000	26	50,775,000
Barley	750,000	15	12,702,000
Grain			$340,977,000
Beets	2,500,000		250,000,000

Total grain by rotation....$590,977,000

We would not only keep all the sugar money at home, but have for export $340,000,000 additional in wheat, corn and barley.

These figures are based on government statistics and clearly demonstrate that the beet grower who rotates his crop will not only increase the yield of beets, but other crops as well, making his beet crop clear profit and all velvet, in the amount of whatever price he receives for his sugar beets.

In succeeding articles we will show that it will pay the sugar beet grower to adopt a standard of efficiency for his farm and make every acre pay, by rotation, as there are other staples which can follow beets, as well as wheat, corn and barley.

The Secretary of Agriculture says: "The production of all our sugar at home will go farther toward raising the standard of agriculture than any other one thing."

WEEKLY GREETING.

What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think.—Emerson.

EVERYBODY REJOICING OVER THE RAIN.

MORE THAN ONE INCH THURSDAY NIGHT.

There is no longer any doubt about the long dry spell being broken so badly that it will soon be forgotten. The south wind that has been blowing for two days bore fruit and rain began falling about half past six Thursday evening and continued all night. The gauge at the Holly sugar factory showed a precipitation of 1.12 inches, making the total for the season 4.15 inches. The fall Sunday night was .91 of an inch.

Chas. J. Andrews, manager of the Bolsa Chica Gun Club, reports a fall of 1.25 inches Thursday night and .92 of an inch Sunday night.

J. J. Pyle, Westminster rancher, who keeps a gauge, reports but .60 of an inch for Thursday night and 3.35 for the season, as against 9 inches last season.

The rain Thursday night was more in the nature of an Oregon mist than some of the California storms, and was the kind that every drop penetrates the plowed soil, and is of untold value to the growers.

TEACHERS ASSISTED IN GOVERNMENT WORK.

The following members of the faculties of the High and Grammar schools went to Fullerton Saturday of last week to assist the Government in preparing some of the questionnaires. Some of them cancelled other engagements to assist in this work: High school—Principal V. B. Brown, Miss Wilson, Miss Munro, Miss Douthit, Miss Miller, Mrs. Edmiston, Mr. Swift, Mr. Stearns.

Grammar school—Principal Harold H. Campbell, Miss Price, Miss Grabill, Miss Stebbins, Miss Mitchell, Miss Davis, Miss Clark, Miss Nichols, Miss Davenport and Mr. Hall.

TRADE-AT-HOME WEEK WILL SOON BE HERE.

COMMITTEE MEETING TO MAKE FINAL ARRANGEMENTS.

There was a committee meeting Thursday afternoon to make final arrangements for the "Trade-at-Home" week, which will be the week beginning March 4th.

The chief attraction will be the baby show, which will include all babies in the district not over two years of age.

Monday and Wednesday, the baby applicants will be measured at the office of Dr. Shank, with Dr. Wilson assisting, between the hours of 3 and 4 o'clock. Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, at the same hour, the work will be in Dr. Wilson's office, with Dr. Shank as assistant. The measurements will be sent to Los Angeles for judgment, and the awards will probably be made Saturday.

There will be a prize of a $5 War Savings Stamp for the best boy and girl.

Monday and Thursday afternoons, from 2 to 4, pictures of the babies will be taken free at Rigdon's studio. There will be a group picture made, and each mother will be presented with one free of charge.

Other features will probably be a band concert and dance Friday evening, but that was not definitely decided upon, as it was not known what night the Odd Fellows' hall could be secured.

There will be the awarding of prizes for the essays by the students of the Grammar schools of this district and the High school. The prizes will be Thrift Stamps, and the manuscripts must be in the hands of V. B. Brown, principal of the High school, by March 1st.

"HER SECRET" WILL BE SHOWN SATURDAY NIGHT

"The Fighting Trail" on Sunday Evening.

"THE MAD LOVER" NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Saturday, Feb. 23rd.

Suppose you were the secret mother of a pretty little girl six years old, who you hadn't seen since she was a tiny baby, because your wealthy husband was ignorant of her existence, and you feared to lose his love by a confession?

And then—when you were able to bring the little daughter into your home as an adopted child, what joy would be yours! How anxiously you would stand side by side with your husband as she was brought into your presence.

But, after this first meeting—what would be your craving? Clara Weston led her little daughter up to the luxurious play-room she had delighted in arranging for her and for the first time in years had her baby alone. With all the passion of a mother's love she knelt before the child, drawing her close to her breast.

"Call me mother, baby," she begged—"call me mother."

Never before has Alice Joyce offered her host of friends a more human, sympathetic characterization than in "Her Secret," the Vitagraph feature in which she is starred with Harry T. Morey. Director Perry N. Vekroff, who both wrote and directed this offering, has instilled a deep feeling for the role into the star, and she achieves a crowning triumph.

The Ford weekly, showing Atlanta, Ga., and the comedy, "Footlights and Fakers," will make you happy.

Sunday, Feb. 24th.

"The Test," a two-reel drama, starring Clara Kimball Young. This star is at Tully's this week.

"The Late Mr. Jones," with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew will be a real comedy. Mr. and Mrs. Drew are at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre this week.

The world events, as shown in the Hearst Pathe weekly, will keep you from sleeping.

"The Fighting Trail," showing a thrilling escape from certain death in a flaming hacienda, surrounded by armed bandits, by means of a subterranean passage, is one of a succession of amazing scenes in episode 3 of "The Fighting Trail," Greater Vitagraph's premier serial of adventure and the great outdoors.

A young American mining engineer and his sweetheart are trapped in the cabin by the outlaws, and the price of their lives is the missing half of the chart to a mine of vast value, which is the inheritance of the girl. The two refuse, and it appears that death is but a moment distant, when they stumble on the secret passage and make their way to liberty as the outlaws shoot into the burning cabin, exultant that their way now is clear to possession of the mine.

Miss Carol Holloway, Vitagraph's fearless little star, is the sweetheart, who insists on sharing every danger of the engineer in his battle against the outlaws for right to operate the mine, which furnishes an explosive ore to the allies. William Duncan, who directed the picture, is the young engineer, and the feats of physical daring these two perform in the filming of this wonderful production set a new record in screens. Ninety-five per cent of the pictures were taken in the wildest recesses of the Sierras, in Southern California, or in the adjoining desert.

Now, then, isn't this worth seeing? I say yes, and then more yesses. Don't let a little thing like rain stop you from coming out. Remember the show costs a heap of money, and I'm trying to please you, and if you don't attend I'm up a tree. Thank you. "POP"

Wednesday, Feb. 27th.

A big novelty in six reels. Robert Warwick, the great Broadway star, coming in "The Mad Lover." Mr. Warwick has earned the distinction of being one of the few male stars whose following in the great metropolis is so large that he has been starred in one success after another, never leaving "dear old Broadway." This speaks very fine for the stage talents of Mr. Warwick, but he has surely robbed the West, in that we have never been able to share in the pleasure of witnessing his performances, on which our eastern friends have placed so marked a distinction.

"The Mad Lover" eclipses anything which Mr. Warwick has yet done. He is surrounded with wonderful settings, and every opportunity has been given him in this production to exhibit his athletic prowess.

The entire cast in "The Mad Lover" is as follows: Robert Warwick, as "Robert Hyde;" Madam Petit, as "Mrs. Lolette Grosvenor;" Elaine Hammerstein, as her niece; Edward Kimball, as "Pastor Larkin;" Frank McGlynn, as "Lawyer Robinson."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

[By Principal V. B. Brown.]

The scholarship honor roll for the month is the largest that it has been yet. It has stood as follows: 1st month, 7; 2nd, 18; 3rd, 24; 5th, 25.

The number in parenthesis after each name represents the number of months of this year that that student has had an average of 90% or above. If we assign one point to each class for each member on the honor roll, the points between the classes will stand as follows: Sophomores, 25; Freshmen, 17; Juniors, 16; Seniors, 11:

Seniors—Margaret Cole (4), grade, 97; Ina Clemens (3); Emma Warner (3); Edith Harris.

Juniors—Izetta Cobb (4), grade, 95; Eunice Stockton (4); Ethel Graham (3); Jennie Ufford (2).

Sophomores—Myrtle Brown (3); Carrie Mallett (4); Eva Murdy (2); Orla Reno (3); Marguerite Ames (2); Loretta Armitage (2); Carmel Grana (2); Fae Harrie (2); Viola Walton (2); Wilma Price, Josephine Winters.

Freshmen—John Adair (3); Velda Barnes (3); Adele Johnston (4); Neal Bradbury (2); Minnie Grana.

Special—Gladys Barnes (4), grade, 96.

At a recent Board meeting, it was decided that all students who go into any competing athletics shall be required to have a physical examination. Blanks have been provided by the county superintendent. Students who wish the examination made by their own physicians can get the blanks at the office. At some specified time an examining physician will come to the High school to examine those who have not had the examination made by their own physicians. Whereas, this is not compulsory, it will be required of all who compete in athletics. The examination is recommended, and any who wish to take it may do so.

Student Body Notes.

[By Miss Grace Foley.]

Friday, February 15th, was eventful to both the girls and boys of the High school. The basketball teams from the gymnasium classes of Miss Munro and Mrs. Edmiston matched their strength in admirable manner. The team from Miss Edmiston's class carried off the laurels of the afternoon's combat, greatly due to the excellent work done by Idonnah Conville and Eva Murdy.

That same evening marked the scene of the annual banquet for the fathers of the pupils, which was most splendidly attended by seventy-six fathers and students. The boys handled the affair completely, even to the cooking of the dinner itself, but, from all reports, our boys proved to be the best of hosts, and the evening was enjoyable to both guests and hosts.

On Monday, the Girls' League met for the purpose of discussing the organization of a Joan of Arc Club, wherein the girls might assist in the conservation program as well as the sale and purchase of Thrift Stamps. Much enthusiasm was apparent by the great number of signatures to the pledge. The organization was effected with Glenna Wright as chairman and Fae Harris as secretary. Monthly meetings will be held, and the reports as to progress will then be made.

On Friday, March 1st, a reception will be given for the mothers, from two to four p. m. Miss Nellie Greene Clarke of Pasadena will speak. A large attendance is anticipated.

The "best yet" assembly of the year occurred Tuesday at 10:45 a. m., when Benjamin Scovell, the noted lecturer from the war front, addressed the assemblage of Grammar and High school students. Scovell concluded his address by admonishing all to support the new American army one thousand times better than the people of America are now doing. The assemblage was further favored by a selection from the Girls' Glee Club, "Stars and Stripes—We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall."

On Wednesday, the Senior girls defeated the Freshmen girls in basketball.

Thursday, at 10:45 a. m., the regular assembly was held, at which Judge W. H. Thomas of Santa Ana addressed the students and townspeople. He said in part: "At a time like this, when we are thinking of Washington, the first American—first in the hearts of his countrymen—it seems strange that an American could do aught but his best. There is time for nothing of a light nature now, but we must rather face the serious facts as they are. Metaphorically, the burdens of government will next week rest upon our shoulders." Judge Thomas encouraged all to refrain from offering criticism, just or unjust, at this time, because any criticism which might hinder our President or our government is un-American. Enthusiastic applause gave vent to the appreciation that the students felt for his address. The assembly was concluded by a verse of the "Star Spangled Banner," earnestly sung by all.

Don't you remember Christmas morning, when you received those photographs and pictures of a like nature? They were nice and fresh looking then, but how are they now, or how will they look in about six months? Will they be as they were when you received them, or will they be all finger-marked, dusty, dog-eared and hopelessly ruined?

An inexpensive frame will preserve them nicely for you, and they will be as attractive years from now as they are today.

Rigdon's Studio, at 137 Main street, is showing an exceptional line of mouldings, including many of a moderate price, from which your selection may be made with all due regard for suitability in price and appearance.

There has also been received a new line of sheet pictures, in the better grade of work, sepias, hand-tinted, etc., and a clever line of comics that has just been published. These are the same pictures that you admire in the large art shops in the city, and are marked here at a considerable reduction from city prices.

Eliminate the Expenses

THE U. S. Food Administrator says "Every unnecessary service in connection with the distribution of food products must be eliminated. Deliveries and credits must be curtailed and consumers given the benefit of savings so effected in order that the people may have food at prices within their reach."

The Grocerteria has followed these instructions to the letter, and there are no unnecessary expenses at our store. That's why we can sell groceries at less than stores that continue to transact business under old style methods.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Huntington Beach do ordain as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, whether as principal or agent, owner or employee, either for himself or any other person, or for anybody, corporate or otherwise, or as officer of any corporation, to commence, or carry on, within the corporate limits of the City of Huntington Beach, the business of Junk Dealer or Junk Collector, without having first obtained from the City Clerk of said City, as hereinafter provided, a license from said City so to do.

Section 5. Any person, firm or corporation desiring to obtain a license or permit under this Ordinance for the conducting or carrying on of the business of Junk Dealer or Junk Collector, shall file an application in writing therefor with the Board of Trustees of said City, specifying by street and number the place where such business is proposed to be carried on, or in case of a Junk Collector, who has no fixed place of business within the City, then such application shall specify, by street and number, his residence. Such application shall be signed by the applicant and shall contain the address of such applicant.

Section 6. Upon receipt of said application, provided for in the preceding section, the Board of Trustees shall act thereon and if it is voted to grant said license or permit, the City Clerk shall be instructed, upon payment of the license fee in advance in legal currency of the United States, to issue to such person, firm or corporation, a license or permit to conduct and carry on the business of Junk Dealer or Junk Collector within the City of Huntington Beach for the class of business and the period represented by the license fee so paid, provided, however, that no license shall be issued for a period of less than one year.

Section 7. In the event that any person, firm or corporation holding a license or permit to conduct or carry on the business of Junk Dealer or Junk Collector, shall violate, or cause or permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this Ordinance, or any of the provisions of any other Ordinance, or of any law relating to or regulating such business or shall conduct or carry on such business in an unlawful manner or shall permit or cause such business to be so conducted or carried on, the Board of Trustees may, in addition to the other penalties provided in this Ordinance, revoke the permit or license granted hereunder to conduct such business and all fees paid for such license shall be forfeited to the city, provided, however, no permit shall be revoked until the person, firm or corporation holding the same shall have been notified and a hearing granted thereon.

Section 10. All Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 11. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not less than Ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than Three hundred dollars ($300.00) or by imprisonment in the County jail not to exceed ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Each person, firm or corporation shall be deemed guilty of a separate offense for every day or fraction thereof during which any violation of any provision of this Ordinance is committed, continued or permitted by such person, firm or corporation, and shall be punishable therefor as hereinbefore provided.

Section 12. This Ordinance is urgently required for the immediate preservation of the public peace and safety, the necessity for said urgency being as follows:

The streets and alleys of the city are infested, almost daily, by Junk Collectors from other cities who, in many instances, have shown their disregard of the ownership of property and the authority for their regulation is imperative for the preservation of the peace and safety of the city.

Section 13. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance and shall cause the same to be published once in the Huntington Beach News, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in the city of Huntington Beach, California, and immediately thereafter it shall take effect and be in force.

Where The Slip of a Hoof Means Death

Rocky ledges and reckless riding are a feature of Greater Vitagraph's marvelous serial melodrama of the great out-doors—"THE FIGHTING TRAIL." The stars, William Duncan and Carol Holloway, face death innumerable times in the cause of this melodramatic masterpiece, and we guarantee that their efforts will thrill and divert you. You will make no mistake in seeing every episode of this stimulating screen-story.

"THE FIGHTING TRAIL."

Episode 3—"Will Yaqui Joe Tell?"

At that moment, Ybarra, shuffling on toward the house, halted a moment to watch it run away. Either through coincidence or by kindness of Providence, the frightened rabbit dashed toward the entrance of the cave. As it was about to enter there for shelter, it took a sudden turn and fled in the opposite direction, with renewed speed. Ybarra was immediately suspicious. Something—perhaps someone—must have frightened the animal. Perhaps someone was in his cave! He turned and called:

"Joe! Joe!"

Yaqui Joe, the relic of a dauntless tribe of earlier days, Ybarra's faithful servant, appeared in the doorway. Don Carlos motioned to the cave. Joe understood. The old Spaniard, his days for physical combat passed, went off toward the hacienda, leaving the Indian to see to the safety of the cases.

When Ybarra entered the house, he was welcomed warmly by the one bright ray in his shattered, lonesome life. It was a young and very beautiful girl, whom he called Nan. She was dark, of the Spanish type, but nevertheless sparkling American. Ybarra often described her to strangers as the kind of a girl an orphan always imagines his mother was. And that was description enough, both of beauty and of character.

"What's the matter, father?" she asked nervously. "Why did you call?"

"I thought perhaps those two mad men from Lost Mine, Shoestring Drant and Cut-Deep Rawls, were about again. Yaqui Joe is looking around now. It may be nothing. Don't be alarmed." He tapped her on the shoulder. Despite his assurances, Nan was alarmed. She feared the men whose names her father had mentioned, for often before she had heard of their maniacal intentions of abducting her.

* * *

The following morning things occurred rapidly and unfortunately at the little mountain town of Lost Mine. Von Bleck and Gwyn arrived at the same hotel a few minutes after each other. The secret agent of the Central Powers got in first, and Gwyn met him in the dining room as he was eating breakfast. Both were clad in rough Western attire, having ridden the entire distance from Barstow by horseback, though along different roads.

At the first sight of him, Gwyn comprehended. He had been followed. In an instant he recalled the conversation on the train, remembered how Von Bleck had attempted to talk business. Everything that had passed between them flashed like a bolt of lightning into his mind. He had no doubt that his suspicions were true. He walked over to the Central Powers' agent, and, without a preliminary word, said:

"Von Bleck, you've gone about far enough. I know who you are, what you are, and what you want. Look out, I'm working to save my nation—you are working to destroy it. I wouldn't for a moment allow such a little thing as your life stand between me and my mission here. I warn you, keep off my trail!"

Von Bleck said nothing. He merely sneered.

Gwyn ate a hurried breakfast, and, after inquiring the way to Ybarra's mine, started out upon the back of a hired horse to find it.

It was said that the occurrences at Lost Mine that morning were unfortunate, and they were, for when Von Bleck had finished his meal, and decided, despite Gwyn's caution, to follow the young mining engineer to his destination, and foil his plans, if such a thing were possible, he asked which trail to follow to Ybarra's. The name he found by reference to his notebook. As fate ruled, his appointed guides were none other than Shoestring Drant and Cut-Deep Rawls, who had prowled about the Spaniard's dwelling on the previous evening.

After they had led him several miles into the mountains, they discovered that he, too, was an enemy of Don Carlos Ybarra, and, due both to Von Bleck's shrewdness in the situation and that of the outlaws, they struck a bargain. It was an immense bargain, almost as great and important as the one made by Gwyn and Balterman, but the conditions under which it was made were in sharp contrast to the other. It was agreed that if Von Bleck, through the aid of the outlaws, should gain possession of Ybarra's cinnabar mine, the outlaws were to be paid the fabulous sum of one million dollars, in addition to which, Van Bleck was to aid them in what was more important than money, to their minds—the abduction of Ybarra's daughter, Nan.

* * *

Meanwhile, Nan and Yaqui Joe had gone to Lost Mine with a shipment of cinnabar, to be sent to Gwyn's New York office. Nan left Joe in charge of it, with instructions for him to wait for the mail, while she hurried back across the mountain trail to her father, whom she did not care to leave alone.

She was riding leisurely along the narrow trail that led around the side of the mountains, when, suddenly rounding a curve, she met Gwyn face to face. The path was not wide enough for both horses to pass easily, and there was a sheer drop of more than five hundred feet into the valley from it. Nan's horse, frightened by the sudden appearance of Gwyn, reared and started to turn in his tracks. One of his feet slid over the edge of the trail and he commenced to fall. Gwyn, in an instant, was out of his saddle and beside her. It was useless to try to save the horse. Already he had lost his balance. Gwyn caught Nan just as she was about to go over the edge, and dragged her back to the trail, while her mount tottered on the brink for a brief second and toppled into space.

Nan, when she had recovered from the shock of her narrow escape, murmured her thanks and was wondering how she would reach her home, when Gwyn astounded her by revealing his identity. He, also, was agreeably surprised to discover that she was the daughter of Don Carlos Ybarra, whom he was on his way to see. He had lost himself in the mountains and was trying to find his way out when they met on the narrow trail.

She looked at him with her great, dark eyes, and Gwyn was overcome by her beauty and carefree freshness. "Father will be mighty glad to see you," she said.

That night, shortly after dusk, when the Sierras were clouded with the evening mist, three figures emerged on horseback from the woods and advanced across the little clearing to Ybarra's hacienda. Von Bleck and his desperadoes had returned. They dismounted, Von Bleck leading, dashed up to the hacienda, bolted through the unlocked door, and faced the occupants with drawn revolvers. Von Bleck had calculated that this would be all that was necessary, but even such efficiency experts of the Central Powers' "system" as he was sometimes calculate incorrectly. Neither Gwyn nor Ybarra threw up their hands in surrender. Instead, they drew their own weapons, and gave furious battle. Von Bleck and the outlaws fired. Gwyn and Ybarra returned their shots. In the excitement no one was hit. For several minutes the fight raged—hand to hand at times—and then Don Carlos fell, a bullet in his head. Gwyn's gun was snatched from behind, and Nan was caught in the iron-like grasp of the chuckling Cut-Deep.

"Get it! Get it!" Von Bleck yelled. "Hurry up, and then run."

The outlaws rushed together toward the kitchen, and suddenly stopped. They listened. Through the open door came the sodden clatter of hoofs upon the grass. The marauders knew immediately what it meant. Yaqui Joe, returning from town, had seen the spot where Nan had fallen and had seen her horse in the gully below. He was rushing to the house of Don Carlos. The position became dangerous. Taken thus by surprise, they might all be killed. Cut-Deep released Nan and ran to the cover of the kitchen. Von Bleck followed, just as Yaqui Joe burst into the door and fired. The bullet pierced his hand, but Von Bleck leaped into the kitchen before he could shoot again, slammed the door, and bolted it.

For several minutes, Gwyn and Joe hurled their bodies against the portal. At last it sagged and fell in, with the two men, battered and bruised, sprawling upon it. They looked up quickly, expecting to meet a volley of shots. Nothing happened. The kitchen was empty!

An open window, with broken panes, told the reason. But a few feet from it, the cover torn off, was an old, wooden chest. Yaqui Joe rested his eyes upon it for a second. Then, with a little cry, ran to it and began rummaging through its contents.

"They've got it! They've got it!" he fairly shrieked. And then, reaching down one side, his finger pressed on something. The inner side flew open, revealing two large, sealed envelopes, yellow with age. "But they haven't got it all!" he shouted almost joyously. Rushing past Gwyn and Nan, who stood, mystified, in the center of the room, he ran into the adjoining room and knelt beside Ybarra. The old Spaniard opened his eyes dazedly and smiled at his servant. He took the envelopes from him and proceeded to tear them open.

"Joe," he ordered, "follow their trail. Get it from them." The old Indian, hesitating not a moment, rushed out of the door, and in another moment could be heard galloping away into the night. Gwyn and Nan were beside Ybarra by this time. The girl looked down into the Spaniard's face and saw there a hidden terror. He was dying.
